DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections – 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bastian, et al (Us 6,650,225).
2. In regards to claim 1, Bastian discloses an apparatus, comprising: a cordless telephone transceiver (antenna 71); a Bluetooth circuit coupled to said cordless telephone transceiver (col. 9-10 lines 37-4); a serial port coupled to said Bluetooth circuit, and wherein said Bluetooth circuit is operable to couple serial data between said serial port and said cordless telephone transceiver, thereby communicating said serial data according to the Bluetooth radio communications protocol (col. 4-5 lines 54-15).
3. In regards to claims 2, 6, and 10, Bastian discloses an apparatus, wherein said serial communications port is a Universal Serial Bus compliant serial port (col. 4 lines 58-61).
4. In regards to claims 3, 7, and 11, Bastian discloses an apparatus, further comprising a software means executable on a separate computing device enabling the coupling of data signals between said separate computing device (computer 20 and CPU 74) and said Bluetooth circuit, through said serial port, for coupling said data signals via the Bluetooth radio communications protocol by said cordless telephone transceiver (col. 4-5 lines 54-15, col. 5 lines 16-38, and col. 9-10 lines 54-4).

5. In regards to claims 4, 8, and 12, Bastian discloses the apparatus, further comprising: a memory (memory 75) for storing user data coupled to said Bluetooth circuit, said Bluetooth circuit operable to couple data signals with said memory, and a software means executable on a separate computing device for synchronizing data stored in said separate computing device with user data stored in said memory via said serial port while said separate computing device is coupled to said serial port (col. 10 lines 29-57).

6. In regards to claims 5 and 9, Bastian discloses an integrated Bluetooth dongle and cordless telephone, comprising: an audio circuit, having an audio signal interface coupled to a microphone (microphone 80) and an earphone (speaker 84); a serial port (col. 4 lines 58-61); a Bluetooth circuit coupled to said audio signal interface and operable to convert between convention audio signals and Bluetooth compliant audio signals, said Bluetooth circuit having a communications interface coupled to said serial port and operable to convert between conventional serial data signals and Bluetooth compliant data signals (col. 10 lines 29-48); a cordless telephone transceiver coupled to said Bluetooth circuit, and operable to communicate said Bluetooth compliant audio signals and Bluetooth compliant data signals according to the Bluetooth radio communications protocol (col. 9-10 lines 37-4).

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Parrott et al (US 6,618,580) teach an apparatus and method for remotely powering-down a wireless transceiver.
